

Open Door to Represent Winsted in the Southwest

MINNEAPOLIS, May 27, 2010 — Winsted Corporation (www.winsted.com) announces Open Door, Inc. (www.opendeye.com) will represent the company's broad selection of ergonomically designed consoles and workspace solutions to surveillance dealers and installers in southern California, southern Nevada and New Mexico.

Open Door is a manufacturers representative for many top lines in closed circuit television technology today. The experts at Open Door specialize in providing complete video system designs; including cameras, video management, network products, switches and consoles.

According to John Dobradenka, president of Open Door, Winsted consoles are not only comfortable and impressive to look at, their modular design provides significant long-term value to the company's clients even as technology changes.

"There was a time when changing the monitor size meant redesigning the entire room," said Dobradenka. "Now, the intelligent design of Winsted consoles makes it possible to simply unlock the back, move the cables and reposition the monitor arm and you're right back in business."
